

Section A

Answer Question 1.

- 1 Functionalists believe that society is based on value consensus. They argue that children are socialised within the family so that they understand social norms and values and can therefore act as members of society. This is seen as just one of many functions that the family performs. Functionalists believe that there is a functional fit between nuclear families and modern industrial societies and that the nuclear family became dominant as a result of the process of industrialisation.

However, Marxists argue that the family meets the needs of capitalism rather than serving the interests of family members. Marxists believe that society is based on conflict between classes rather than harmony and consensus.

- (a) What is meant by the term functional fit? [2]
- (b) Describe two functions of the family apart from socialisation. [4]
- (c) Explain the consequences of families failing to socialise children, according to functionalists. [8]
- (d) Assess the Marxist view that the family meets the needs of capitalism. [11]

Section B

Answer either Question 2 or Question 3.

- 2 Explain and assess the view that the family has experienced a loss of functions in modern industrial societies. [25]
- 3 Explain and assess the view that the nuclear family remains a dominant family form. [25]

BLANK PAGE

Permission to reproduce items where third-party owned material protected by copyright is included has been sought and cleared where possible. Every reasonable effort has been made by the publisher (UCLES) to trace copyright holders, but if any items requiring clearance have unwittingly been included, the publisher will be pleased to make amends at the earliest possible opportunity.

To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced online in the Cambridge International Examinations Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download at www.cie.org.uk after the live examination series.

Cambridge International Examinations is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group. Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which is itself a department of the University of Cambridge.