(b) Ellie Turnbull says, 'Striking is truly the right thing to do. 95% of our members voted to strike. We need to show the managers that they cannot treat us this way. They want to reduce our pay and increase our work. This is unfair. It threatens our livelihood. If we stop working, managers will realise that they need us, and then they might treat us like people with lives instead of just as expensive parts of their business.'

How convincing is this part of her reasoning?

In your answer you should:

- consider one of the values she holds;
- consider the likelihood of one of the consequences she suggests;
- use examples of her words and phrases to support your point of view.
